

Every one of my wooden pieces is alive with its own personality. As diverse as nature, no two are exactly alike, which makes each a collector's item. Each piece begins with images & concepts that take shape in my mind to become the final distinctive design. The basic shape is skillfully cut from wood, colored by acrylic wash, given depth & dimension with acrylic sponge & brush strokes. Next the figure is stained to soften the color, followed by sanding to highlight the wood grain & acrylic texture patterns. To add character & life, fine black lines & a unique signature complete each creation. My works of art can be viewed at my home studio, at selected art shows, and on my web site: www.phillippi.org.

As a little girl living in a row house in Philadelphia, I never thought to dream of a grand lake at the end of my road. I did dream of one day living where there were "all trees and no houses". In my dream, I would look out of my kitchen window & see horses. Dreams, & even unimagined dreams, do come true. Today my roots run deep at Phillippi Quarter Horse Farm by the shores of Lake Michigan. Years of partnering in a nurturing & enduring marriage, raising our two sons, working as a registered nurse & caring for the many creatures that live on our farm, have shaped me into the being I have become. Looking back, I see that although my life still abounds with both professional challenges & accomplishments, the symphony has softened, as has my soul. My daily parenting responsibilities have been replaced with frequent phone calls & occasional trips to Texas, where our sons make their homes. There are still horses, dogs, cats, birds, & wild turkeys; the tempo has changed, transformed by time to a fine slow waltz.

I am blessed with an intrinsic creative talent. Hushed until my eldest son was born, it resonated within me when I began painting on wood to make gifts for family & friends. Their approval of my work encouraged me to expand my creations. Today my art embodies years of evolving skills, deepened by my life experiences. An inspired voice sings within me with renewed inner peace.

In a sunlit area of my kitchen, looking out at our horses & trees, I continue to create.
